

Homeowners Affordability Tax Credit

To be eligible for the Manitoba Homeowners Affordability Tax Credit, you must be able to check off all the provincial requirements (#3).

Any application forms submitted prior to the tax bills being printed, (April 1) are eligible to receive the HATC on your current year's tax statement. If submitted after, the current year's tax credit can be claimed through Income Tax and the credit will appear the following year on the tax statement.

Frequently Asked Questions – New Homeowners Affordability Tax Credit

Full Details on HATC:

<https://gov.mb.ca/finance/tao/hatc.html>

What changes have been made to school tax rebates and credits for the 2025 tax year?

Key changes include:

- The Education Property Tax Credit (EPTC) is being replaced with the Homeowners Affordability Tax Credit (HATC) and is being increased to a maximum of $1,500.
- The School Tax Rebate, which provided a 50% rebate on school taxes for residential and farm properties, and a 10% rebate on school taxes for other properties, is being eliminated for all properties except farm properties. Farm properties will continue to receive the 50% rebate.
- There is no additional seniors credit as part of the HATC, but the Seniors School Tax Rebate continues to be available (more information below).

How will the HATC be calculated?

The amount of the HATC is the lesser of $1,500 and the gross school taxes on your principal residence.

Will the HATC apply to principal residences only?

Yes, HATC will apply to principal residences only. It does not apply to any other properties (rental properties, secondary residences/cottages, commercial properties, etc.).

What is a principal residence?

A principal residence is a single residential dwelling unit in Manitoba that is owned by an individual or their spouse or common-law partner and that is the primary residence of the individual or the individual's cohabiting spouse or common-law partner.

A residence is a person's primary residence taking into consideration factors such as:

- the amount of time spent by the individual at the dwelling unit in relation to the amount of time spent at any other dwelling unit,
- the address of the individual shown on their income tax return, driver's licence, motor vehicle registration, registration cards for health and health insurance, bank and credit card statements and statements of account for utilities.

An individual (and their spouse or common-law partner) cannot have more than one principal residence.

Am I eligible for the HATC as a renter?

No, as a renter, you are not eligible for the HATC. However, you may claim the Renters Affordability Tax Credit <https://gov.mb.ca/finance/personal/pcredits.html>

Are condominium owners eligible for the HATC?

Yes, condominium owners whose properties are individually assessed can receive the HATC on their property tax statement like other homeowners. Owners who reside in an assessed property that contains more than one dwelling unit (duplex, triplex, etc.) cannot receive the HATC on their property tax statement but can claim the HATC on their tax return.

How do I receive the HATC on my property tax statement?

In order to receive the HATC on your property tax statement, you must have self-declared your principal residence with your municipality. Contact your municipality for information on how to declare your principal residence.

What is happening with the Seniors School Tax rebate?

The Seniors School Tax rebate is being maintained at $235 minus 1.0% on family net annual income over $40,000 for principal residences only. This rebate is claimed on the personal income tax return.

How will the School Tax Rebate on farm properties be calculated?

There are no changes to how the School Tax Rebate on farm properties works. It will continue to be 50 per cent of gross school taxes and will continue to be applied directly on the property tax statement.
